Outstanding commencement for outstanding class

F. G. MILLER'S GRADUATING CLASS OF 2003 rose to their feet to honor The Honorable Dr. Lois Hole, Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, as she departed from their commencement exercises. Madame Lily Pentek had the honor of escorting The Hon. Dr. Hole to and from the auditorium.

WITH THE TURN OF A TASSEL by FGM Principal Jim Hawkins, Kirsty Lindquist officially becomes a graduate of the school

Thirty members of F. G. Miller High School's Graduating Class of 2003 were the toast of the town Friday night, as they donned caps and gowns for their commencement exercises.

Jasmine Brown, Moriah Brunner, Sandy Bullock, Blair Cardinal, Crystal Deschamps, Erin Donaldson, Theresa Flamand, Brett Flanders, Michelle Friesen, Brianne Greening, Eva Gusnowski, Colton Hoffman, Laci Jacobson, Kyle Kurek, Mark Letestu, Kirsty Lindquist, Kevin Moneta, Kristy Myshaniuk, Maureen Myshaniuk, Chris Nielsen, Kyle Nielsen, Andrew Priddle, Chris Prymak, Danielle Schnurer, Shawn Slywka, Jaylynn Wirsta, Dayna Yaremkevich, Tasha Yopyk, Brad Young and Amanda Zapesocki marched slowly into an auditorium packed with family and friends, each carrying a candle which was lit by a member of the school faculty as they were introduced by teachers Brenda Bintz, Lily Pentek and Randall Kryz and made their way on stage. Tara Campbell, Melissa Dorey, Mark Ference, Cody Faithful, David Morris, Audra-Lynn Nelson, Krisean Sakowski and Dan Sheppard also qualified for commencement but were not on hand for the ceremonies.

F. G. Miller's Graduating Class of 2003 has more glory to remember than any other class in the school's history. Not only have they achieved the highest average marks ever, they have also had the most distinguished guest at their commencement exercises.

The Honorable Dr. Lois Hole, Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, charmed the class, their families and the school faculty with her humorous and thought-provoking address, and spoke highly of the community.

"You have a lovely town," the Hon. Dr. Hole said. "It speaks of good community spirit - it's a pleasure to be here." She told the graduates that they were taking "the first step toward a brighter future," and as they venture into the unknown with some uncertainty, she advised them, "don't be afraid to take a little time to consider what you want to do. You need a willingness to keep learning, and the ability to believe in yourself."

In the early days of a farming career that evolved into a huge greenhouse and nursery business, the Hon. Dr. Hole and her late husband "endured a lot of setbacks," from crop failures and livestock fatalities to machinery malfunctions. "Our friends told us we'd never make it - but we believed we would, and we kept working at it. Our belief in better times to come saw us through."

The Lieutenant Governor is a strong advocate for education and literacy, and told the graduates that the benefits of their education "is already being enjoyed, and there's more to be had in a wider world. An educated culture is a richer culture, with better jobs resulting in higher taxes" which eventually "contributes to the cultural legacy. Education simply makes sense, but it's more than an economic stimulus... it is a tremendous power for good. A well-rounded education gives you the ability to learn, grow and affect the world." She told the graduates, "you have the expert knowledge we need - don't hesitate to share your concerns with your MLA, your MP, your municipal government and your school board. We all have a role to play in keeping public education alive."

Local players trying out with Bonnyville Pontiacs

"Back to school, back to school, so my daddy thinks I'm no fool." No fooling this is serious, school started today, the summer holiday is over!

Here's some information you may or may not know.

The Alberta Junior Hockey League provides an excellent environment for developing student athletes who would like to pursue their dreams of playing at the college level. Forty-eight players from last years AJHL are going on to U. S. and Canadian College this year with some form of scholarship.

Most of the Jr. "A" teams held their main tryout camps two weeks ago. Some of our local boys are still there trying to make it with the Bonnyville Pontiacs. The team played three exhibition games this past week against Lloydminster. Two of these guys you will remember are already heroes in my books, they played a big role with our provincial championship ball team the Midget Sox this year, Kevin "Iceman" Moneta, and Mark "the Marksman" Letestu. Hopefully they can cut the line up, time will tell, but I can tell you this for sure, no two guys will give you a better effort than these two, and that's a fact. "Iceman" has one assist so far and the "Marksman" has a goal and an assist. Good luck to the boys, were pulling for you!

Two other young promising defensemen, midget aged Corry Bezpalko and Devon Moneta, played in last Monday night's rookie game, although not for certain, they will likely be sent back down to "AAA" midget for more conditioning, although no doubt they could be called up during the season from time to time.

Here's an article that we ran twice before, the first time way back in 1998, but what better time is there to run it again. It's titled "What do scouts look for?"

Strong skaters? Guys who can accelerate, can move in traffic, are strong on their skates, able to battle and protect the puck. Players with character? They play the game with passion, they want to compete even when things aren't going well, they play with intensity and emotion, and they love the game. Players that are disciplined? Yet tough enough to fight when necessary. Positive kids? Team players, team leaders. Skilled players? Goal scorers, players that can control the puck in open ice and in traffic, can give and receive a pass, can shoot the puck under pressure, have good hockey sense, can read the play and react. And here's a big one? Play without the puck, driving to the net, finding open ice, back checking, picking up the open man, blocking shots, puck pursuit skills, angling, communicating.

What about goalie skills? Concentration? Is he focused, communicates, makes the first save, is he in the game or does he gets down on himself and has the "beat" syndrome. Anticipation of the play? Puck handling, rebound control, what's his recovery time? Movement? Agility, speed, balance, laterals, forward, backwards, up down.

And what about size? Yes, unfortunately size is a big factor in today's game, but in the Alberta Junior League size does not seem to be as big a factor as speed.

Coming up this week, the first general meeting of the A.G. Ross Operating Committee, tomorrow night at 7.30 p.m. Everyone is welcome as always.

And now for the K. A. Campbell's quote of the week "We had a lot of triple-threat guys- slip, fumble and fall." Last week's answer to "many baseball fans look at an umpire as sort of necessary evil to the luxury of baseball, like the odor that follows an automobile" - Christy Mathewson

CRIME STOPPERS

■ In the late evening of Saturday, August 23, 2003 a truck was parked outside the Elk Point Hotel in Elk Point. The owner of the truck emerged from a local drinking establishment to find the rear window of his brand new 2003 GMC Super-cab smashed with a rock. Further damage was done to one of the side mirrors of the truck. Total damage to the truck was in excess of $1500. If anyone was in the area of the Elk Point Hotel and the Empress between the hours of 10 p.m. and 1 a.m. and witnessed or noticed the damage to the vehicle, please contact the Elk Point RCMP.

■ Sometime in the early hours of Sunday, August 24, 2003, a 2000 Chrysler Neon 4-door, purple in color, was stolen from a residence in Elk Point. It was last seen outside the residence at 11 p.m. and when the owners awoke at 5 a.m. the vehicle was gone. The vehicle had a full tank of gas in it. On the front right hand side of the vehicle, the amber light cover is missing. There are no other distinguishing marks, parts or colors on the vehicle to set it apart from any other Neon of that year or color. Police are currently working on other leads at this point but are urging the public to keep an eye out for this stolen vehicle.

Anyone with information regarding any of the above incidents is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477) or the Elk Point RCMP Detachment at (780) 724-3964.

Crime Stoppers will pay up to $2000 for information leading to the arrest of the person(s) responsible for these or any other crime. You do not have to reveal your identity and if your tip leads to an arrest you qualify for an award

Each year, Elk Point Historical Society hosts an afternoon which explores the history of some aspect of life in Elk Point and surrounding area. In the past, these events have centered on the Frog Lake Rebellion, the railway, and trails and transportation. This year, the event will be held in Elk Point, and will focus on the history of health care.

Since the community's early days, Elk Point has provided health care for a wide surrounding area, with a series of hospitals and generations of health professionals ready to serve the public's needs.

Saturday, September 20 is "Hospital Day", and the Seniors Recreation Centre will open at noon for the public to view displays of photos, clippings and memorabilia all afternoon. A program of speakers is planned for 1 p.m., with an opportunity for the audience to share their recollections of the community's hospitals and doctors through the years. Afternoon tea will be served, and everyone is welcome.

fashion, likened school to a game, with teachers and parents as coaches. "Next week, they won't be there as you begin the game called life." He said that in his many years of coaching various sports teams, "the best players are the ones who inspire themselves. It isn't going to come from me." He urged them, "don't let anyone discourage you from doing what you want in life," and reminded them they can still come home for help when it is needed. Bassett paid special tribute to grads Mark Letestu and Kevin Moneta, "two really great athletes" who are currently playing with the Bonnyville Pontiacs.

Principal Jim Hawkins told the crowd this was "a particularly high achieving class. Even since well before my time, no class has done as well as this."

Eva Gusnowski had the honor of giving the valedictory address, and urged her classmates to make their life an adventure. "If you don't take risks, your life will be mundane... we must force and become change." She asked the old question, "what is the meaning of life?" and said, "don't let others tell you. The fun is to figure it out for yourself." While time is "liquid - it all runs away," the grads will "later look back and see how trivial it is. This day will quickly pass, but don't forget the moments. Each day is what you make it." She ended with a quote from William James: "be not afraid of life... make it worth living, and celebrate the fact..."

Donna Slywka brought greetings from the School Council, and noted, "last night were the Much Music awards - tonight the stars are you on this stage." The Class of 2003's prom theme was "venturing into the unknown," she noted, "and every one of you is probably concerned you won't succeed or measure up.. but it's not the starting point or the destination that is the value of the trip. Have confidence in yourselves and in the choices you make, and you will succeed."

Mayor Lyle Frisby congratulated the Class of 2003 on their hard work and dedication. "You are our country's future.. every day you will learn something new. Keep open minds and open hearts."

School Board trustee Darrell Younghans said that "once the name F. G. Miller was synonymous with great medical care, now it's synonymous with great education. I told this group they would find it hard to match up to last year's class, and they stepped up to the challenge. They're outstanding students," he noted, citing Chris Nielsen's 100% math departmental mark and Brad Young's win of the Lieutenant Governor's award. "Your choices and your actions got you here today. Keep on making these choices and go for it."

"Congratulations - you've made it," Superintendent of Schools Doug Yeo told the grads. "One mile stone down and many more to go. You've learned how to educate yourself, and to stick with it until you reached your goal." Now, he advised, "learn to live, not just respond to life, never stop learning, focus on what you want and where you want to go and don't let things confuse you. Get a life - you are the future - take it seriously. And be grateful - it changes you to a positive way of thinking."

Following the address by the Hon. Dr. Lois Hole, Younghans assisted Hawkins to present awards, pins and key chains to the students. Jasmine Brown received the Lions scholarship, Moriah Brunner the Joy of Living scholarship, Brett Flanders the Paul Grykuliak Agricultural Award, Michelle Friesen the Dr. Weigerinck and the Bepalko-Sribney awards, Eva Gusnowski the Kates Memorial Award, the Governor General's Medal, and awards for top marks in individual subjects. Kirsty Lindquist received the Dr. K. C. Miller award, Academic Honors and the Premier's Citizenship award, Kristy Myshaniuk Academic Honors, Chris Nielsen the high marks in Math 33 and the first and only 100% scholarship, Kyle Nielsen Academic Honors, Brad Young the Elk Point Dental Clinic Citizenship award, the Millennium Scholarship and Academic Honors, and Amanda Zapesocki, Academic Honors.

The grads then filed off the stage to be met by Hawkins, who turned the tassels on their mortarboards to the side signifying their new status as graduates. He presented each with a scroll before they lit their candle and marched off to meet the future.

After a brief break for an outdoor photo shoot and the ceremonial cap-tossing, everyone reassembled for a sumptuous banquet, with grace by Father Nong. Following the meal, teacher Colin Bjorkman proposed the toast to the members of "the best academic class this school has ever seen," noting that nine students took Math 31 of their own volition, and had the highest average ever in that subject as well. Jasmine Brown replied to the toast and said "it's a very smart class and a privilege to be with them."

Kirsty Lindquist toasted the parents. "We have reached this goal through our own hard work and the persistence of our parents, who have sacrificed time and money... and have given us the opportunity to discover our own strengths and weaknesses." Her mother, Cheri Lindquist, replied that the parents are "proud of what you have accomplished so far, and excited about what you will do in the future."

Amanda Zapesocki toasted the teachers "for helping us to succeed and having extraordinary patience. Madame Lily Pentek replied that "we are proud to be celebrating with you. Keep your eyes and ears tuned in to what is happening, and be true to yourself and what you believe."

Hawkins then called forward Kirsty Lindquist and Brad Young of the graduating class for the ceremonial presentation of the ceremonial Crusader sword to Dana Parenteau and John Braga, representing the Class of 2004.

The evening wound up with the distribution of gifts from the Students' Union to each grad, with Valerie Friesen and Shyla Bullock announcing the recipients and Taryn Shankowski handing out the gifts appropriate to each individual.

The Hon. Dr. Hole urges balance

Education is "not just a way to get ahead," the Hon. Dr. Hole emphasized. "We must work for peace and understanding, and being educated is one very large step closer to attaining it. The world depends on an educated population."

Education comes not only from books but from experience, according to this personable woman who has tried both. "Finding balance in life is vital." When they started farming, "Ted and I relied on books for our very survival. We didn't grow up on farms. Ted had a degree in agriculture but sometimes I thought experience would have gone better. We looked things up in books, and took notes along to the field." While neighbors scoffed, "we learned a lot by planting and harvesting, but we did quite well with books. A few pages taught us what would have taken years by trial and error." She noted that it is also important to balance work and play, and had made sure her sons had time to play football and take part in extracurricular activities as well as help on the farm. She herself likes "the symphony, plays and good books" and advised the grads to "juggle work, play, education and experience. Do what you love and pursue it with passion. Do whatever excites you most but try other things too - the whole world's out there for you to explore. You can have a lot of fun trying and achieve balance in your lives."

The Hon. Dr. Hole added congratulations to the parents and the community. "You have a beautiful, beautiful community. I didn't realize it was as big as it is - a lot bigger than the town in Saskatchewan I grew up in." She exhorted the whole community to "look after your libraries," and suggested everyone "quit buying things we don't need and help our libraries. Grandma doesn't need another blouse, but our libraries do need books and money."

THE HON. DR. LOIS HOLE imparted wisdom with a touch of humor at Friday's commencement.

Parental involvement in schools

By Barbara Grinder

Alberta Teachers' Association

Stephen Harris, associate superintendent for Livingstone Range School District and a former teacher and principal, is firmly convinced that parental involvement in schools leads to greater student success. "That's been my experience and there's also been a fair bit of research on the topic. Studies show that students get better grades and develop better social skills when parents are active participants in the educational process. When parents help out in the schools, it shows the students that education is important."

Many educators feel schools and communities will have to work together even more closely to solve some of the problems children have today. A study says the problems many children experience - crime, abuse, economics and family breakdown - are too great to be dealt with by the school or any other single institution. Schools can only succeed to the extent that the broader community's efforts, especially those of parents, also succeed.

The ways in which parents can get involved vary greatly from school to school, Harris says. "Parents can and do play a more active role in the elementary grades, especially in terms of actual classroom activities. We have parents who are involved at the middle and high school levels, but we'd like to have more. In the upper grades, involvement is most often in extracurricular activities, sports programs and field trips, but it can also be in the classroom. Parents with special interests, experience or training can be a critical part of curriculum enrichment programs."

Some schools encourage parents to share their knowledge as guest speakers, either in school assemblies or individual classrooms. Examples of parental involvement include a geologist who gave a slide show/talk series on exploring for minerals in the far north and an accomplished landscape painter who helped out with art classes in her children's schools.

Harris says some teachers ask for parental involvement directly or through forms sent home with the students; others wait for parents to offer. In the elementary grades, it's very helpful to have a parent work one-on-one with students who need extra help learning basic skills. "This is especially important in large classes or in rural schools where more than one grade is being taught in the same classroom. But there are lots of ways parents can help, even if they can only devote a little bit of time. Just coming in once a week to help with photocopying test papers or hanging displays in the hall can be a big help to an overworked teacher."

Each school district has board policies governing parental involvement, especially when it comes to student records and liability issues. Here are a few ways parents can make their involvement in the schools more effective.

1. Call the school and let the office or your child's teacher know you're willing and able to help out. Be specific about the amount of time you can devote, the flexibility of your schedule, what you're able to and what you're willing to do. If you have a special skill, let the school know, and let them know whether you prefer to work with children directly or would prefer to help with administrative work, such as looking after hallway displays. Indicate whether you want to help only in your own child's classroom or programs, or if you'd be willing to help wherever you're most needed.

2. Show respect for the teacher's efforts, even if you don't always agree with specific elements of classroom activities. Never criticize a teacher in front of the students, even in jest. Learn the teacher's classroom rules about dress, behavior, language and other details. If you're expected in a classroom and can't make it, let the teacher know as soon as possible. Expect the same kind of courtesies students show the teacher to be extended to you.

Information sharing time again

Have you every wondered who to contact to ask if "such and such" takes place in Elk Point? Or, have you every wondered which group might need your volunteer help? Don't worry. On Tuesday, September 9 from 7 to 9 p.m., the FCSS office will be hosting the Annual Information Night at the Elks Hall. All community groups and services are being invited to book a table where information about them can be shared with you.

There are a couple of things I would like to bring to your attention. First of all, the Elk Point Library is bringing a puppet show for the kids. That should be fun. Secondly, the Elk Point Health Unit is asking each of us to bring a non-perishable item for the St. Paul Food Bank. The container for you to put these items in will be beside the Health Unit table. If we can, let us all help out the St. Paul Food Bank.

There are many more tables being confirmed so plan to come out on September 9 and learn what is happening in Elk Point. It is a fun evening of information sharing.

Speaking of information sharing, did you hear about the letter sent from the Irish mammy to her son? "Dear Son: I'm sending you these three socks since yer 'Da' tells me that you've grown another foot since the last time we saw you..." Just think - if you come to Information Night, you wouldn't have to rely on what someone else tells you, you will be able to find out for yourself. And... you don't have to send three socks because you know exactly what 'growing another foot' means.

Let me tell you another story. Do you remember Francis Bacon? he was one of the great minds of the late 16th century, as he was a statesman, philosopher, writer and scientist. Some people believe he's the real author of Shakespeare's plays. On boy, on that one. Anyway, one afternoon in 1625, Bacon was watching a snow storm. He began wondering if snow might be as good a meat preservative as salt.. and decided to find out. With a friend, he rode through the storm to a peasant's cottage, bought a chicken and had it butchered. Then, standing outside in the cold, he stuffed the chicken with snow to freeze it. The chicken never froze, but Bacon

deanna
from the FCSS desk

did. He caught a serious chill and never recovered, and he died from bronchitis a few weeks later. Imagine, the price that was paid for that discovery. There is no price to pay for coming to Information Night - just remember to bring a non-perishable item for the Food Bank.

In conclusion, let me tell you a story about keeping in touch. Did you know that "Out of Touch" means "a person who is out of physical or mental contact with others". It comes from the 18th century when it became fashionable among European military leaders to have their soldiers march as close together as possible. "As a practical way of regulating his space," one observer notes, "the soldier in the ranks had to be sure that his swinging elbows would touch those of comrades on each side." When gaps in the line formed, it was a sure sign that somewhere a soldier was -literally- out of touch. Let us all keep in touch with what is happening in Elk Point. Come to Information Night on Tuesday, September 9, any time from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Elks Hall.

New fiction for fall from some favorite authors

The summer holidays are over, the children are back in school, and just maybe now a person will have time to sit down and relax for a few minutes with a book. We have lots of great new fiction on our shelves, so come down to the Library soon and check out one of these:

From the author of 29 New York Times best-sellers including "The Mulberry Tree" and "The Summerhouse" comes "Wild Orchids". In her newest release, Jude Deveraux tells a tale of love, tragedy and mystery in a small town, where widowed author Ford Newcombe finds a new lease on life and new inspiration to resume his stalled career. Ford's new assistant and researcher, Jackie Maxwell, who seems to instinctively know a lot about the community, and about a legendary tale about those who talk to the devil. Written with alternate chapters giving voice to the viewpoints of Ford and Jackie, "Wild Orchids" is sure to be another hit with those who eagerly await another Deveraux novel.

Two new novels take the reader back to the hard times of the 1930s, and show sharp contrast between poverty in America's heartland and in Britain's dockside slums at that time.

America's famous Route 66, the "Mother Road", is the focus for Dorothy Garlock's latest. Going back to the American west setting of "A Place Called Rainwater" and "The Edge of Town", Garlock introduces us to Leona Dawson, who keeps house and cares for the two daughters of her widowed brother-in-law, Andy Connors, who runs a gas station and campground along Route 66. A mysterious Texan, Yates, rides into town just in time to come to the aid of the family when Andy is attacked by a rabid skunk, and helps Leona to hold the fort and fight off her bent-on-vengeance, religious-fanatic brother, while Andy is hospitalized. The plight of the unfortunate 'Okies' who travel the road en route to California and who pause at Andy's for a tire patch or an overnight respite is a sad reflection of the depression years.

Rural America would have seemed like heaven to those who lived in the squalor of dockside

Liverpool, England in the late 1930s. By Helen Forrester, author of "Penny to Cross the Mersey" and "By the Waters of Liverpool," "A Cuppa Tea and an Aspirin" takes us into the recollections of Martha Connolly, whose family of 11 were crowded into a single room in a tiny tenement, eking a bare existence from her sales of rags and her husband's infrequent work unloading ships. Looking back at that life from her bed in a nursing home years later, she recalled the fortitude with which her close-knit community survived the squalor and deprivation.
